Graduate Studies in Mass Communication and Media Arts
There are four graduate programs in Mass Communication and Media Arts (MCMA) within the College of Arts and Media (CAM): 1) a Master of Arts (MA) in Media Theory and Research, 2) a Master of Science (MS) in Professional Media and Media Management, 3) a Master of Fine Arts in Mass Communication and Media Arts, and 4) a doctoral degree (PhD) in Mass Communication and Media Arts. The programs are driven by the scholarly, professional, and artistic expertise of the faculty members in the School of Journalism and the School of Media Arts.

The Graduate School at Southern Illinois University Carbondale
The four graduate programs in MCMA are the joint responsibility of the College of Arts and Media and the Graduate School at Southern Illinois University Carbondale (SIUC). Students must meet the requirements of both of these entities regarding entry, graduate assistantships, graduation, and all other aspects of the degree programs. Please consult the “Current Students” section of the SIUC Graduate School’s website for policies and procedures beyond the domain of MCMA. This information is located at: https://gradschool.siu.edu/current-students/

The Associate Dean of the Graduate School, in consultation with the Graduate Council, administers university-wide graduate affairs. The Director of Graduate Studies (DGS), in consultation with the MCMA Graduate Committee, administers the MFA program. The DGS advises graduate students, directing them toward faculty members who work in areas of the students’ interest. The DGS assigns graduate, teaching, and research assistantships.

The curricula of the four MCMA graduate degree programs are delivered by faculty members granted “Graduate Faculty Status” by the Associate Dean of the Graduate School. This status is granted on the basis of scholarly and artistic achievement. This status authorizes faculty members to teach graduate courses and serve on graduate student committees. There are different levels of graduate faculty status. Depending on the professor’s graduate faculty status, some professors may not be able to chair committees. Most graduate faculty members, however, are allowed to direct student theses (MA and MFA), research reports and creative projects (MS), and dissertations (PhD). Students should consult with their faculty adviser regarding the graduate faculty status of their potential committee members. The DGS may need to request Graduate Faculty Status for professors, particularly those outside of SIUC.

Mission Statement of the MCMA Graduate Programs
The graduate programs in the College of Mass Communication and Media Arts develop teaching, research, and creative work that interrogates the construction, reception, and social impact of mass media forms and texts. Our work uniquely blends methods from the arts, humanities, and social sciences. Students study historical, theoretical, and critical approaches to mass communication. The faculty seek to nurture an intellectual and creative community attuned to global social changes, as we respond to new ways of creating and analyzing written, aural, and visual media.
Description of the MFA Degree in Mass Communication and Media Arts
The MCMA Master of Fine Arts program provides substantial advanced study for a small number of highly talented individuals. The program emphasizes the artistic development of the individual student and the creation of quality artistic works in photography, film, video, sound, new media, and interdisciplinary media. Degree requirements are 60 semester hours. The program generally takes three years to complete. Please see the document, “MCMA Graduate Programs Policies and Procedures” for more details about program and Graduate school deadlines and requirements.

The MCMA MFA is a terminal degree that is unique in its balance of coursework in art, media history and theory, with media arts practices, individual mentorship, and interdisciplinary work in other programs throughout the university. The faculty awarding a successful student the MCMA MFA degree is an acknowledgement of intellectual and creative achievement within the media arts. Students accomplish this via the development of an innovative individual practice that culminates with the creation of a unique body of work in video, film, sound, installation, new media, or inter-media, accompanied by a written thesis. The program prepares students for careers in the contemporary media arts as a media artist, artist, video or filmmaker, designer, theorist, educator, and other future professions which will require creativity and artistic acumen.

While mastery of craft within Media Arts is a vital component of the MFA, our philosophy is that graduate study should expand the student’s breadth as an artist and encourage interdisciplinary study. Available coursework in production, criticism, theory, history, and combined media studies emphasizes the interwoven character of traditional and contemporary approaches and technologies in the 21st century.

A distinguished faculty of artists and scholars, excellent facilities, and a variety of curricular offerings allow students to individually tailor their programs of study.

Student Learning Outcomes for the MFA Degree

Students will demonstrate:
1. A disciplined, professional arts-based practice in the media arts.
2. A mastery in one or more practices in the media arts.
3. To write about their own work and the works and theories of others from critical, historical and aesthetic perspectives.
4. An analytical understanding of contemporary media discourses.
5. An understanding of scholarly and creative research methods.
6. The ability to conduct independent scholarly and creative research.
7. The ability to explain fundamental and advanced concepts in the field of media arts.
Curriculum Guide for the MFA Degree

Students must take 3 credits of MCMA 559: Studio Arts Practice and Critique during all three fall semesters of residency in the program, totaling 9 credits.

Students must take 2 credits of MCMA 588: Graduate Colloquium in both Fall Year 1 and Spring Year 1.

Students must take 12 credits of MCMA 584: Supervised Independent Studio during the first four semesters of residency in the program.

Students must take two media studies courses: MCMA 553: History and Theory of Media Arts and MCMA 531: Critical Research Methods in Media Arts.

Students must take 6 credits from this menu of “Studio Practice Courses”

- MCMA 522: Sound Art Studio
- MCMA 516: Networked Art
- MCMA 521: Expanded Cinema
- MCMA 540: Critical Documentary Practices
- MCMA 582: Game Narratives
- MCMA 523: Topics in Studio Practices

Students must take 6 credits of MCMA 524: Topics in Interdisciplinary Practices

Students must take at least 12 credits of electives.

Students must take at least 5 credits of MCMA 599A (MFA Thesis) during their third year in residency in the program.

Students may not take any credits at the 400-level or below to count toward their progress in the MFA degree program.

Preferred MFA Electives as determined by MCMA faculty:

- MCMA 511: New Media Production
- MCMA 517: Multiplatform Storytelling
- MCMA 535: Topics in Textual Analysis
- MCMA 543: Media Arts Studio Seminar
- MCMA 549: Professional Documentary Practice
- MCMA 552: Special Topics in Media Studies
- MCMA 568: Social Media Practice
- MCMA 576: Topics in Gender, Sexuality, and Media
- MCMA 577: Topics in Race and Media
- MCMA 585: Pedagogy and Professorial Skills

However, other MCMA graduate-level courses are allowed, as deemed appropriate by the student, faculty committee, and Director of Graduate Studies.
We also encourage students to work with their faculty advisers to seek out graduate-level coursework in other departments where different perspectives will enhance our MCMA students’ learning. Additional coursework can be pursued through the other units in the College of Arts and Media: the School of Art and Design, the School of Music, the Department of Theater, and the School of Architecture. We also encourage our students to explore ways of learning across the University, in departments and schools such as English, Anthropology, and Communication Studies, among others.

Please see Appendix I for the course descriptions of the full roster of MCMA graduate courses.

Sample Curriculum Map

MCMA course offerings are designed on a four-semester rotation, so MFA students beginning the program in an even-numbered year will take courses in a different sequence than students starting in an odd-numbered year.

Fall Year 1 [11 credits]
- MCMA 559: Studio Arts Practice & Critique [3 credits]
- MCMA 584: Supervised Independent Studio [3 credits]
- MCMA 588: Graduate Colloquium [2 credits]
- MCMA 553: History and Theory of Media Arts [3 credits] or
- MCMA 524: Topics in Interdisciplinary Practices [3 credits]

Spring Year 1 [11 credits]
- MCMA 584: Supervised Independent Studio [3 credits]

The Importance of Faculty Advisers
Graduate education depends upon students working closely with faculty members in the students’ areas of interest. Every graduate student must have a faculty adviser. The DGS will guide new graduate students in MCMA graduate programs toward potential faculty members with whom to work.

MCMA graduate students should meet with their adviser early and often. It is the students’ responsibility to seek out faculty members. The professors are experts in the fields in which students want to work. Faculty advisers will guide students with the selection of their coursework. Students and faculty advisers should complete a program of study each semester, and forward it to the DGS. The program of study form for the MFA degree is located at the end of this handbook.

After taking courses and meeting faculty members during the first and second semesters of the program, students should select a thesis committee chair soon thereafter. The thesis committee chair is the student’s primary source of advice about which classes to take, how to design and execute artwork, and how and where to submit work to festivals and exhibitions.

One primary goal of graduate school is professionalization. Students will learn how to conduct themselves properly as academics, as befits artists and scholars working in mass communication and media arts disciplines. As students make the transition from undergraduate learners to professionals, they will find themselves developing new knowledge in the field in concert with their professor mentors. This opens up the exciting possibility of students collaborating with faculty members on exhibition and publication. The relationships students and faculty members forge should develop into long-term professional collaborations. Carefully nurture these relationships by demonstrating your commitment to your career by being proactive and enthusiastic in your interactions with your faculty mentors, especially when it comes to meeting deadlines and fulfilling your obligations as graduate students.

All of our faculty members are excited to meet and work with you. Please see Appendix II for a list of our professors, their areas of expertise, and their contact information.

MFA First-Year Review Process
A faculty review committee will meet with each MFA graduate student at the end of the first year of study. At this meeting the student will have an opportunity to present and discuss his or her work with the faculty. This is a holistic review. Faculty evaluate students on how well they are synthesizing concepts and practices from their coursework, and how the student is surpassing the work submitted in their admissions portfolio (i.e. exploring new forms, developing new approaches to work, and developing a more nuanced self-critique).

In this review, students should be able to:
- Identify appropriate artistic and conceptual influences on their work,
- Prepare a statement to use in the review that situates their work in relation to contemporary and historical practices.
- Discuss the themes and concepts that are emerging in their artistic work and research.
- Demonstrate an appropriate work ethic for graduate level study by commitment to projects, timely performance, creative initiative, and application of high standards to the work.

The MFA faculty in attendance will determine whether the student passes, receives a pass with reservations, or fails the review. For students who receive a pass with reservations, you will be given a guideline of projects and readings that will help you remedy areas in which you need improvement. If you receive a failure, the faculty will provide an explanation of deficiencies in terms of academic or artistic performance. Any student who fails the end of first-year review will be dropped from the program. Those who receive a pass with reservations will be assigned a faculty mentor to work with over the summer. This mentor will set a schedule of meetings, and may assign any readings or projects that s/he deems necessary to help the student succeed.
A Narrative of the Thesis Process

Thesis Committee
By the end of the third week of the third semester in residence:

- each MFA student will be required to select a committee chair and by the end of this semester, a thesis (final creative project) committee consisting of a minimum of three (3) graduate faculty members.
- By this time the student should have begun to identify a general area of interest and choose committee members who can help guide and challenge the student through the thesis process. The chair of an MFA thesis committee must be an MCMA faculty member holding the MFA degree or holding the PhD degree with a record of creative activity in peer-reviewed venues. One additional member must be an MCMA graduate faculty member.
- A signed committee form must be submitted to the Graduate Studies office no later than the end of the third semester.
- Student responsibilities: The student is responsible for contacting each member of the committee and requesting that person’s participation. The student will then send email to the MCMA Graduate Studies Office assistant with the names of those members indicating which one is the committee chairperson. If you include an external committee member from another SIU college or another university, please include from which department they are faculty, and if off-campus then also include from what university. Off-campus faculty must have additional pre-approval from the Graduate School to serve on the committee. The assistant prepares the typed form for your committee chair and the ADGS to sign then it gets sent to the Graduate School for approval. The student, in consultation with the thesis committee, develops a plan of study, considering the requirements of the Graduate School, the degree program and the goals of the student.

Thesis Proposal Defense
By the end of the second year of study and when the committee chair is satisfied with the proposal, the MFA student provides copies to all members of the committee for review and the student organizes a date for defense of the proposal. Do not plan summer proposal defenses. The proposal is open to the public.

Student Responsibilities: The student is responsible for copying and delivering the proposal and for coordinating the date and time, and reserving the location of the proposal defense. The student is responsible for informing ADGS staff of the date, time, location and chair-approved title of the defense in writing a minimum of two (2) weeks ahead of time so the announcement and defense forms can be prepared.

Proposal Format: The presentation should involve a clear statement of what the thesis project will entail, including the conceptual, theoretical and philosophical underpinnings and relationship to appropriate contemporary practice. The proposal should also include a timeline for completion of the thesis. The student’s thesis committee will make a determination whether the student passes, receives a conditional pass or fails the review. Those who pass will be admitted into MFA candidacy. Those who are given a conditional pass will be re-reviewed by the end of the second week of the following fall semester when the student’s thesis Committee will determine if the student is admitted into MFA candidacy or fails. Those who have not remedied deficiencies will be dropped from the program. Those who receive a conditional pass at the end of the second year thesis project proposal and are later successfully admitted into MFA candidacy should expect a delayed graduation date with no extended financial support from the college.

Graduation Application
The graduation application is found on the Graduate School’s website under forms. It should be filed with the Graduate School no later than the 2nd week of the term in which you wish to graduate. It will help to give a copy to the ADGS staff so they can verify that you have met all degree requirements except for your final defense and paper submission. If a student finishes all requirements by the time of the ceremony, MFA graduates can be hooded by a faculty member who they invite and who has agreed to do so. If, however, the student has not but will soon meet all requirements they may walk but CANNOT be hooded. Therefore, it is recommended by our college to not walk until you can be officially hooded, as it is an honor and a great experience for your family and friends in attendance to witness.

Graduation Ceremonies are held in May and December each year.

Thesis
The theses hours (6) include the culmination of the creative work generated for the thesis exhibition/screening and a contextualizing paper.

1. Exhibition/Screening
   In the third year of residence, each student should be focused on intensive independent artistic work, culminating in the MFA thesis. The exact nature of the thesis will be determined in a collaborative process between the student and the committee, with the committee chair supervising the thesis process. All MFA theses must be exhibited/screened publicly. Students are responsible for finding and securing an appropriate venue for the exhibition/screening in consultation with their thesis committees. Venues include the University Museum galleries for exhibition and Morris Library’s Guyon Auditorium for screening. Reservations are open to all students though they are typically scheduled 6 months to a year in advance of the exhibition. The exhibition/screening must be held in conjunction with the Oral Exam (see Item 3 below).

2. Thesis Document
   A written paper should contextualize the creative component of the thesis work in relation to appropriate contemporary theory and arts practice. The final draft of the paper should be given to all committee members at least 2 weeks prior to the scheduled oral exam. Please consult the Graduate School website for details about electronic theses formatting and submission guidelines including media formats that can be embedded to document the creative project component of the thesis.

3. Oral Exam
   At the time of the thesis exhibition/screening, an oral examination by your thesis committee will be scheduled on the same day or within two (2) days of the thesis exhibition or the opening of a thesis screening. It is preferable to do this on the same day, as both events are public and it is easier to schedule all committee members for one event rather than two. You will be expected to make a presentation on the project and then to answer questions from committee members and other attendees. The written component of the thesis can serve as a foundation for your presentation. Oral exams must be open to the public. It is your responsibility to schedule the exam in consultation with your committee, and to notify Graduate Studies office staff of the time and place at least 2 weeks in advance. There are forms that are available in the Graduate Studies office that must be filled out ahead of time for you to take to your exam for committee signatures.

After Acceptance of the Thesis
Students must comply with Graduate School requirements for submission of the finished thesis. Review the Graduate School's Guidelines for the Preparation of Research Papers, Theses and Dissertations, available on the Graduate School’s website.

Deadlines for submitting completed theses vary slightly from year to year, so please watch for the MCMA Graduate Student Listserv emails which will publicize the due dates.

Students who have completed their course work and the minimum number of credits required for dissertation must enroll in MCMA 601 Continuing Enrollment each regular fall or spring semester until they complete the degree.

Upon acceptance of the thesis, members of the committee sign the thesis defense form, which is then signed by the ADGS and forwarded to the Graduate School. The Graduate School reviews the completed thesis and ensures its compliance with submission guidelines. Final acceptance and electronic submission of the thesis to the Graduate School’s ProQuest site completes the process.

Graduate students are responsible for checking with their committee members and chair to see if they want to have provided to them more permanent bound copies (standard paper) of the student’s final thesis, at the student’s cost. If hardcover bound, they should be done in a red cover with gold lettering. The SIUC University Book Store can arrange for binding of the completed thesis for a fee.

Assuming that the student has applied for graduation during the second week of that semester and all other degree requirements have been met, MFA graduates will be “hooded” at the ceremony. However, if they have not met all requirements they are permitted to walk early but cannot be hooded until all requirements are met. If the student has completed all requirements and will get hooded, the student should invite a faculty member to hood them and inform the DGS of the professor chosen for this honor, as paperwork must be submitted.
MFA Time Line

SPECIAL NOTE: For any comprehensive exams, proposal defenses, thesis/dissertation/research paper defenses, you should contact your faculty during the regular semester (not summer) before you plan the event. Do not count on faculty to be here in summer.

1. End of first year review: Your first year courses will help you to prepare for the review.

2. Develop a general area of interest: A number of core courses and electives should be completed within the first three (3) semesters. These will help you to begin to identify a general direction and area of interest. MFA project and other courses should be used to explore topics of interest to help the student begin to focus in on a thesis subject.

3. Select a Thesis Committee: You should consider your developing area of interest when selecting a chair and other members of the committee.

4. Form: Provide your committee members’ names in writing to the Associate Director’s office staff to prepare for the ADGS to sign the Graduate Faculty Committee Approval form by the end of the 3rd semester of residency.

5. Develop your proposal: Work with your committee chair to develop your proposal. Your other committee members should act as a resource for your proposal development. The proposal should involve a clear statement of what the thesis project will entail.

6. Defend your proposal: In consultation with your committee choose a date and place to defend your proposal and notify ADGS staff not less than two (2) weeks prior with the date, time, location and chair-approved title of the thesis proposal. The defense must be open to the public. The defense should be held prior to the last two weeks of class. Do not plan summer proposal defenses. DO NOT begin production on your thesis until your committee has approved the proposal.

7. Form: Once the committee has approved the project proposal, each committee member must sign a MFA Proposal Defense form, provided to the chair by the ADGS staff.

8. Human Subjects: Typically creative projects do not require Human Subjects approval. If necessary or when in doubt, make sure your research is cleared through Human Subjects. To secure the current form packet and to find what materials is needed to approve your thesis, go to the Office of Sponsored Projects Administration web page (http://www.ospa.siu.edu/compliance/human-subjects/).

9. Thesis: Work with your chair and committee throughout the whole process. The written papers accompanying the creative work are typically 15-25 pages, and serve to contextualize the creative work. The final draft of the paper should be given to all committee members at least 2 weeks prior to the scheduled oral exam. Documentation of the creative project is embedded into the electronic thesis document. See associated website for specific instructions.
10. Apply for graduation: The deadline is usually the end of the second week of the semester you plan on graduating. Check with the Graduate School for official deadlines. NOTE: MFAs can choose to “walk” in the ceremony early but cannot be “hooded” at the ceremony, until all requirements for their degree are met and cleared by the Graduate School. This is different than either the master’s or doctoral student policy so do not get confused.

So if you want to be officially hooded as an MFA graduate then wait until you are fully finished before attending the ceremony. The student should invite a faculty member to hood them and inform the ADGS office staff of who is that individual, as paperwork must be submitted.

11. Make revisions: The written component nearly always requires some degree of revision. Your committee may require revisions in your creative work as well. Members of the committee will specify these.

12. Review the Formatting Guidelines for Theses from the Graduate School: Each year the Graduate School publishes strict format guidelines for the electronic submission of papers. Papers may be in either APA or Chicago style and should include embedded media that documents the creative project portion of the thesis.

13. Thesis Exhibition/Screening: The thesis requires a public showing of a body of work. The exhibition will vary with each project, but typical venues/formats include: gallery exhibition, public screening, public performance, site-specific installation, etc. Note that an oral examination by your thesis committee will be scheduled on the same day or within two (2) days of the thesis exhibition or the opening of a thesis screening. It is preferable to do this on the same day, as both events are public and it is easier to schedule all committee members for one event rather than two. The student is responsible for reserving a location for the exhibition, for creating publicity material to generate an audience (the ADGS staff will prepare a general announcement), and for informing ADGS office staff of the date, time, location and chair-approved title of the thesis exhibition so a formal announcement can be created.

14. Oral Examination: This is scheduled on the same day or within two (2) days of the thesis exhibition or the opening of a thesis screening. It is preferable to do this on the same day, as both events are public and it is easier to schedule all committee members for one event rather than two. Includes a formal presentation of the work by you and the final questioning on your thesis show by your committee. The defense must be open to the public. The defense should be held the same day, but no later than a week within, the opening of its related exhibition or screening. It should be no less than a week before the Graduate School’s deadline for final paper submission. Otherwise, prior to the last two weeks of class if you are not planning on finishing in time for that term’s graduation ceremony. Do not expect to have your oral examination during the summer. The student is responsible for reserving the gallery or appropriate venue for the defense and for informing, in writing, the ADGS staff of the date, time, location and chair-approved title of the thesis show so a formal announcement can be created.
15. Forms: After the student has successfully passed the oral review, the revisions for the written statement are complete, and the committee has approved the thesis, the committee members must sign and promptly return to the ADGS staff the following forms that are provided to your committee chair by the ADGS office:

- Oral Defense Form
- Thesis Approval
- Thesis Project Assessment Form

16. Submit an electronic copy of thesis to Graduate School: All work must be complete at least five weeks prior to the end of the semester if you plan to participate in the graduation ceremony. This includes all revisions and the submission of the final electronic copy of your paper to the Graduate School’s ProQuest site. Check the Graduate School website for the official deadline for that semester.

Upon final acceptance, graduate students are responsible for checking with their committee members and chair to see if they want to have provided to them more permanent bound copies (standard paper) of the student’s final thesis, at the student’s cost. Note the binding colors for MCMA theses are a red cover with gold lettering.

17. Preparations for the graduation ceremony: MFA graduates are can be hooded at the ceremony if they have completed all the degree requirements. You need to invite a faculty member to be the person to hood you and provide the name to the ADGS office staff. Unlike, PhDs but similar to master’s students, you may choose to walk in an earlier ceremony before completing all of the requirements. HOWEVER, you cannot be hooded until you have met all requirements! Therefore, the college recommends that you walk in the ceremony in which you can also receive the hood as it is an honor.

Appendix I: Full MCMA Course Roster

MCMA 500-3 - Media as Social Institutions
Provides an introduction to major issues involving media in contemporary societies. Multi-disciplinary in nature, the course introduces major theoretical perspectives used in reviewing media productions and activities and the relationships among media organizations and practitioners and other institutions of society.

MCMA 506-3 - Law and Policy of Mass Communication
Focuses on free expression in journalism and entertainment across the media. Topics may include news gathering techniques, intellectual property, the Internet, and governmental regulation. The course pays special attention to the tension between what is legal and what is ethical.

MCMA 507-3 - Media Management
Analysis of a variety of media industries, including industry structures, and the industry processes of media development, production, and distribution. Attention to management of media companies across sectors as the industry adjusts to economic and technological change.

MCMA 508-3 - Conceptual Foundations of Research Strategy
Analysis and evaluation of conceptual frameworks underlying empirical research strategies, positivist, textual and qualitative, commonly used in media and internet research. Issues in multi-method research strategies are reviewed. Ethical implications are debated.

MCMA 509-3 - Media Ethics
Overview of ethics philosophies and accountability tools for the mass media. Areas to be studied include journalism reviews, ethics codes, ombudsmen, media critics, news councils, and public/civic journalism. Covering issues in journalism, photojournalism, public relations, advertising, new media, and "infotainment."

MCMA 511-3 - New Media Production
Investigate how the Internet works, explore relationships among design, technology, and user experience while developing web sites, information architectures, interface behaviors, and navigation systems. Topics include: HTML & XHTML authoring, Cascading Style Sheets, Javascript, open source software, and incorporating sound, video, and images into web pages. Issues of privacy, legal and ethical responsibilities for consumers and producers of web content.

MCMA 514-3 - Theories Mass Communication and Media
An advanced theoretical engagement with the field of mass communication research, media studies, and media arts. The course covers principal theoretical approaches, including the empiricist, positivist paradigm in mass communication research; critical media studies; film and television studies; and cultural studies.
MCMA 516 - Networked Art
History, theory, and practice of digital media as an online art form. Examination that results in students producing art work in linear and non-linear hypermedia narrative, network conceptualism, and generative software. Issues include identity, location, collaboration, surveillance, hacktivism, tactical media, immersion, game design, media synthesis. Lab fee: $75.

MCMA 517 - Multi-Platform Storytelling
Students write and produce short fiction or non-fiction stories using digital media. Emphasis on storytelling development and story structures, and advancing one's technical skills across multiple media platforms. Projects will be incorporated into multiple delivery platforms such as the web, download and/or social media. Students will experience editorial production of artifacts gathered as they shape a variety of media into stories for delivery on web via class magazine and social media. The productions will target various platforms, from web to mobile devices. All students will build on a range of production skills extending beyond reporting, writing, photography, graphics, audio capture and video shooting. Course fee: $50.

MCMA 521 - Expanded Cinema
This course provides a foundation for creating media art that goes beyond the boundaries of traditional cinema and that challenges the conventional relationship between spectator and screen. Students will create immersive environments and live performances that integrate projections of still imagery with film, video, audio and audience participation. Special areas of concentration will include these histories: Futurism and Surrealism; Fluxus and Happenings; conceptual and performance art practices in the 1960s and 70s; relational aesthetics and social practice; tactical and interventionist media. Project assignments will be both individual and collaborative. Restricted to MFA students in MCMA or consent of instructor. Lab fee: $75.

MCMA 522 - Sound Art Studio
This studio-based course offers students the opportunity to explore sound as a medium of artistic practice and intellectual inquiry. Assignments for the course emphasize how and why sound art is created in a variety of modalities including: installation, performance and improvisation. The course is also a forum for the exploration of contemporary and historic approaches to sound art through phonography, radio art, DIY electronics and other platforms. During the semester, listening and critique sessions will be used to evaluate student creative responses. Additionally, written responses to assigned readings will also be used to help facilitate discussions and critiques. Equipment Usage & Lab fee: $75.

MCMA 523 - Topics in Studio Practices
This is a special production topics in studio production and practices course for MFA's in Media Arts that focuses on specialized production techniques, topics, techniques, and formal approaches to media making. The course offers the opportunity to gain new techniques and build skills through the use of potentially unfamiliar production equipment and approaches. The class encourages students to explore the edges of their disciplines by providing a focused framework for formal investigation and experimentation. Equipment Usage & Lab fee: $75.
MCMA 524-3 - Interdisciplinary Practices
This hybrid MFA studies and practice course will use a topical starting point for critical study of the histories and philosophies associated with social and scientific movements and paradigms through media and art histories, cultures, and practices. Readings, guest lectures, and field trips delve into the semester theme and contribute to the generation of media art developed through the strategic framework of each artist's practice. Lab fee: $75.

MCMA 531-3 - Critical Research Methods in Media Arts
This course introduces students to critical and interpretive research methods and techniques for the study of media arts and culture. It focuses on interdisciplinary approaches and covers a range of humanities-based methods and theoretical perspectives.

MCMA 532-3 - Quantitative Research Methods in Mass Communication
Advanced exploration of quantitative research methods to write a professional article suitable for publication or a chapter in an academic thesis. Covers methods such as sampling, surveys, experiments, content analysis, and statistics. Focuses on research design, formulating research questions, reviewing and applying appropriate literature in the field, hypothesis formulation, data acquisition, and discussion and analysis of results.

MCMA 534-3 - Qualitative Research Methods
An introduction to the intellectual underpinnings, epistemology, and methodologies of qualitative research. The course focuses on critical and interpretive approaches to researching media industry structures, artifacts, audiences, and producers.

MCMA 535-3 - Topics in Textual Analysis
This class examines methods of textual analysis in the media arts with references to their historical, theoretical, and practical contexts.

MCMA 537-3 – Introduction to Mass Communication Research
Foundations course to introduce MA and MS students to the conceptual practices of research. Students will learn how to evaluate primary and secondary sources, and use this research to write papers and reports. The course demonstrates the steps of a research project: writing a proposal, reviewing the literature, designing the research instruments, collecting data, and analyzing results. The course introduces qualitative and quantitative research methods.

MCMA 538-3 – Critical Analysis of Discourse
Critical Analysis of Discourse is a theory-based methodology which takes as its unit of analysis the entire 'utterance' (e.g. news bulletin, newspaper article, Facebook posting, a hashtag). Its methods are closer to literary and rhetorical criticism than the quantitative word count of content analysis. This methodology allows the research to unveil ideological motivations in language use and in images, and can be applied to most forms of media texts including social media and video games.
MCMA 540-3 - Critical Documentary Practices
Documentary is both a product of existing social conditions and a form of critical opposition to them. This course will emphasize independent video production from invention of the documentary idea to post-production. Emphasis on connections between critical theory and media production. Students will embrace the conceptual and hands-on process of researching, writing and producing independent documentary video, focusing on critical arts practice.

MCMA 543-3 - Media Arts Studio Seminar
A forum for the pursuit of creative projects in the media arts. May be repeated as topic changes. Restricted to CMCMA MFA or PMMM major or consent of instructor or director of Graduate Studies in Mass Communication and Media Arts. Laboratory fee: $50.

MCMA 548-3 - MFA Projects
Supervised independent creative work in media arts, the exact nature of which is to be determined in consultation with the MFA faculty member. Consent of instructor. Equipment usage fee: $50.

MCMA 549-3 - Professional Documentary Practice
Production students will work with experts from a variety of specializations across campus to produce short form documentaries for broadcast on WSIU. A comprehensive overview of producing successful programs for the industry taking the topic from scripting to filming to editing. Advanced video or audio production skills are required.

MCMA 552-3 - Special Topics Media Studies
This course provides an in-depth study and discussion of selected topics in media studies. Topics vary and will be announced in advance. This course may be repeated when the topic differs.

MCMA 553-3 – History and Theory of Media Arts
A survey of media history, from oral storytelling and cave paintings to social media and video games. Situates media in their historical contexts, with special attention to articulations among media technologies, aesthetic forms, cultural practices, and social formations. Analyzes media practices through foundational and contemporary theories from media studies and its interdisciplinary interlocutors.

MCMA 559-3 - MFA Studio Art Practice
This course is an interdisciplinary forum in which to develop a three-fold set of media arts practice, critique, and research skills. It is repeated three times, taken once each fall semester of enrollment in the MFA degree program. The focus of the first two iterations is to establish media creation strategies and practices with emphasis on aesthetic and conceptual development as encountered within a variety of media arts practices and forms: still image, time-based, spatial, and interactive. The focus of the third iteration is for MFA artists to implement their individual media arts practices and to articulate the critical, historical, and theoretical context of their work. Restricted to MFA students in the College of Arts and Media, or via consent of instructor and the MCMA Director of Graduate Studies. Equipment Usage & Lab fee: $75.
MCMA 561-3 – Media, Social Movements, and Social Change
"Social change" is a multi-dimensional concept and yet also a bedrock of democracy. Much more than an act or action, social change is a process of negotiation between those who have and those who do not. This course is a theoretical and practical exploration of both mainstream and alternative media's role in political and social movements and their push for social change. Numerous scholars have theorized the social change potential of mediated communication and mass production, and these theories of social change have important implications for critical arts practice and the study of media and the media industries. The objective of the course is to join theories of social change with the interests of the students, allowing them flexibility and freedom to develop their current projects in the area of social change.

MCMA 563-3 - Globalization and the Media
Debates about globalization from historical, theoretical, and critical perspectives. The major uses of communication technologies in international economic, political and cultural processes. Topics include regional and global trends, trade regimes, global policy bodies and policy issues; global media influence.

MCMA 564-3 - Political Economy of Media
Addresses the intersections of politics, economics, and social structures that underpin media arts and industries at global and national levels. Emphasizes the relationship between theories and methods.

MCMA 565-3 - Strategic Advertising Management
Problem solving through strategic advertising communications and integrated marketing techniques, including product research, branding, public relations, sales and promotion, social media, and direct media campaigns. The focus is on business strategy and planning. Students will concentrate on targeted, creative digital media strategies to execute an integrated marketing campaign for a local or national client.

MCMA 567-3 - International Advertising
An investigation of how organizations market in Marshall McLuhan's 'Global Village'. Students will consider how political, social, economic, cultural, and technological factors influence advertising around the world. Explorations of how big data and artificial intelligence create advertising opportunities on multiple digital and social media platforms. Students will learn theories, business models, data analytics, branding, and explore case studies of major global brands.

MCMA 568-3 - Social Media Theory and Practice
Explores social media from various perspectives. Topics will cover history and development of social media, social advertising/marketing, citizen journalism, social media and health communication, and other issues related to social media such as privacy, gaming, interface design, identity, etc. Students will gain hands-on experience with social media.
MCMA 576 - Gender, Sexuality, and Media
This course critically examines the role and potential impact of the media in enabling, facilitating, and challenging social constructions of gender, gender expression, and sexual identities in U.S. society and globally. We will go far beyond the common discussions of problematic media representations of female beauty and male violence to use theories of gender, gender expression, sexual identity, and gender-based violence to understand contemporary media production and representations. We will explore how objects, social practices, government policies, and even nations can be gendered, and how this functions to create and maintain interlocking systems of oppression. Global in scope, this class will enable us to look within but also well beyond the U.S. to better understand the impact of specific ways of gendering in popular culture and the media's role in this process.

MCMA 577-3 - Topics in Race and Media
An in-depth study of the relationship between race and media through the lens of a specific topic. Common themes include critical race theory and ideologies of race, raced representation in media texts, racial and ethnic diversity in media industries, and media as a contested site in the struggle for racial justice. May be repeated when the topic differs.

MCMA 582-3 - Game Narratives
Teaches students the core ideas and practices of game narratives. It covers: a) The conceptual fundamentals of theories of game narrative design; b) The technical and organizational process of creating a narrative game. This includes designing and implementing a narrative game using an appropriate software tool. While game narrative is at the center of this course, the skills and knowledge acquired in this class are applicable to broad range of design-centric fields and contexts.

MCMA 584-(1-6) - Independent Studio
Supervised Independent Studio provides a critical foundation for MFA students by establishing a formal structure for studio visits and critiques that takes place a minimum of four times over the course of a semester. Students enrolled in the class will be assigned a member of the MFA faculty with whom to work. Twice per year, students will meet with members of the MFA faculty to preview progress. The course is taken during the first four semesters of the MFA degree program.

MCMA 585-3 - Pedagogy and Professional Skills
A practicum course in which students learn the theories, craft, and art of teaching. Topics include course design, lecturing, leading of seminar discussions, assessment, grading strategies, writing and grading essay exams, formulating writing assignments and strategies for responding to student work to produce transformations in learning. Conceptual strategies for how and why to teach in-person and online synchronously and asynchronously. The course also covers skills required to enter the job market in academia. Topics include how to build a research career, how to apply for an academic job, how to successfully negotiate a phone interview and an on-campus interview, and how to succeed as an early assistant professor.
MCMA 586A-2 - Professional Media Preparation
Pre-production work for the M.S. media project. Directed by a committee of three, the chair of which must be a member of the graduate faculty in MCMA. Students must present and defend the proposal for their media project to the committee in a public forum. Restricted to students in the Professional Media M.S. degree. Lab fee: $50.

MCMA 586B-2 - Professional Media Preparation
Preparation work for the M.S. research report. Directed by a committee of three, the chair of which must be a member of the graduate faculty in MCMA. Students must present and defend the proposal for the research report to the committee in a public forum. Restricted to students in the Professional Media M.S. degree program.

MCMA 587-3 - Critical Social Media Studies
A theoretical, critical approach to the study of social media. Students identify critical media studies theories and concepts and apply them to the study of social media. Both diachronic and synchronic perspectives intersect within the course. Students learn the historical context in which social media platforms have evolved. Historical knowledge informs the analysis of contemporary case studies regarding social media policies, social media discourse and politics, social media ownership, and other pertinent topics.

MCMA 588-2 - Graduate Colloquium
An introduction to graduate studies via encounters with the research and creative disciplines of MCMA. Weekly meetings wherein individual faculty members introduce students to their research and creative work. The course will also serve as a forum in which students discuss their own research and creative work in an interdisciplinary setting. Guest lectures and presentations by visiting scholars and creative artists as become available. Setting for both the faculty and graduate student research and creativity colloquiums. Required of all graduate students in MCMA. Pass/fail only.

MCMA 589A-3 - MS Media Project
Media project directed by a committee of three, the chair of which must be a member of the graduate faculty in the College of Mass Communication and Media Arts. The media project is a student's original creation which breaks new ground in mass communication and media arts. The media project must be submitted to the Graduate School. Students must present and defend their final media project to the committee in a public forum. Prerequisite: MCMA 586A with a grade of B- or better. Restricted to students in the Professional Media MS degree program in MCMA. Lab fee: $50.

MCMA 589B-3 - MS Research Report
Research report directed by a committee of three, the chair of which must be a member of the graduate faculty in MCMA. A research report synthesizes the existing literature on a specific topic in mass communication to enable the student to create new knowledge about the subject. The research report must be submitted to the Graduate School. Students must present and defend their final report to the committee in a public forum. Prerequisite: MCMA 586B with a grade of B- or better. Restricted to students in the Professional Media MS degree program.
MCMA591-(1-6) - Readings
Supervised readings on subject matter not covered in regularly scheduled courses. Graduate students limited to three credits per semester. Consent of instructor.

MCMA594-3 - Practicum
Study, observation and participation in activities related to the fields of Mass Communication and the Media Arts such as internships in related professional organizations. Restricted to MCMA major.

MCMA 596-(1-3) - Independent Study
Supervised research or independent creative work, the area of study to be determined by the student in consultation with instructor. Consent of instructor.

MCMA 599A-(1-6) - MFA Thesis
Thesis requirements may be satisfied only by a creative thesis for the MFA degree in Mass Communication and Media Arts. Minimum of six hours required for the MFA degree in MCMA. Graded S/U. Restricted to students in the MFA degree program. Lab fee: $75.

MCMA 599B-3 - MA Thesis
599B-3 MA Thesis. Thesis requirements may be satisfied only by a written thesis for the MA in Media Theory and Research in MCMA. Minimum of three hours required for the MA degree. Graded S/U. Restricted to students in the MA degree program in MCMA.

MCMA 600-(1-12) - Dissertation
Minimum of 24 hours to be earned for the Doctor of Philosophy degree.

MCMA 601-1 - Continuing Enrollment
For those graduate students who have not finished their degree programs and who are in the process of working on their dissertation, thesis or research paper. The student must have completed a minimum of 24 hours dissertation research or the minimum thesis or research hours before being eligible to register for this course. Concurrent enrollment in any other course is not permitted. Graded S/U or DEF only.
